History

The 16th New York Infantry regiment consisted of 1247 men from three counties in Northern New York State. These included companies A, B, F, G, H, and K from St. Lawrence County, C, D, and E from Clinton County, and I from Franklin County. On May 10, 1861, Thomas A. Davies was assigned as the colonel of the 16th New York Infantry. Davies was chosen because he had a military education, being a graduate of West Point and was a native of St. Lawrence County. The 16th New York Infantry regiment would serve two years in the United States Army and was mustered in on May 15, 1861, in Albany, NY.

Thomas A. Davies served as colonel of the 16th from May 15, 1861, to March 7, 1862, when he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General and went on to command the 1st and 2nd divisions of the west Tennessee army. Following Davies, Joseph Howland was promoted to commanding colonel of the 16th and served as colonel until September 28, 1862, when he resigned because of wounds received in the battle of Gaines's Mill. He was later promoted to the rank of Brigadier General. The final colonel to command the 16th was Joel J. Seaver who commanded from September 29, 1862–May 22, 1863, when he was mustered out. The majority of the 16th infantry was mustered out on May 14, 1863. One hundred and twenty-six members of the regiment were assigned to the 121st New York Regiment to complete their service.

Scope and Content

This collection consists of two series. Series one contains letters, orders, and reports dating from April 3, 1862 to December 31, 1867 mostly written by the members of the 16th New York State Infantry regiment. The majority of the letters in this series are addressed to one of the three men who served as colonel to the 16th, Davies, Howland, or Seaver. Out of the letters addressed to these former colonels most are to Howland. Davies, Howland, and Seaver have written some of the letters in response to requests that they have received from former members of the 16th wanting advice about a certain situation that has arisen or updating the colonel on what has been occurring within the ranks of the infantry. The rest of the letters are addressed to other members of the army such as majors or captains, and a few are addressed to Col. Howland's wife. This series also contains two letters written by other soldiers from different regiments and some newspaper clippings.

Series Two contains records and forms dating from September 1861 through May Tenth 1863 (The 16th NY regiment was mustered-out May 14th 1863) along with records with no dates. Some of these documents are of "A" company of the 16th

Regiment while others list no affiliation; no other company or regiment are mentioned. Included in this series are Muster Rolls, Muster-Out Rolls, Clothing Reports, Ordinance Reports, Quartermasters reports, etc. In addition, this series contains four blank forms.

Series Three contains two cased photographs of unidentified Union soldiers from unknown units. One image is an ambrotype, the other is a daguerreotype.
