

PHILIP HARNDEN PAPERS
MSS Coll. #163
2.25 ft.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

This collection contains records of the anti-war activist group Alternatives to War, and the records of the home agriculture-related newsletter North Country Gardener. Alternatives to War is Series 1 of the collection and North Country Gardener is Series 2. Series 1 consists of e-mail communications, hand-written notes and letters, lists of people attending meetings, fliers, news clippings on the group's activities, financial statements, petitions, photos of demonstrations and other activities related to Alternatives to War. The records run from October 2001 through 2006. Series 2 includes North Country Gardener records of business operations, subscriptions, circulation, press releases, promotion and source material for articles, as well as copies of each completed newsletter between 1991 to 1993. Also included is a 92-page three ring binder showing the development of the publication as well as a copy of each issue.

BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL

Philip Harden.....bio info.....

Alternatives to War described itself as "a coalition of people in northern New York who advocate a sensible and nonviolent approach to resolving national and international conflicts". The organization's profile was raised considerably when leaders of the group successfully brought former United Nations weapons inspector Scott Ritter, a high profile opponent of the war, to Canton and Potsdam in Oct. 2002, with the help of a number of other groups and the local colleges.

This series contains a rather complete record of the activities of the activist organization Alternatives to War, a group that formed shortly after the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks in the U.S. The organization formed following community meetings, mostly in the Canton area, in opposition to the war in Afghanistan immediately after the attacks and became more and more active in the months leading up to the 2003 declaration of war on Iraq.

North Country Gardener was a bi-monthly newsletter for people gardening in northern New York. 13 issues were published before publication was suspended after the Winter 1993 issue. Subscriptions varied from a little over 100 by the second issue to about 300 by the end of its run. The initial subscriber base was culled from respondents to a North Country gardeners survey put out by Mr. Harnden in 1990. While the newsletter was relatively short lived, comments from readers point to a well-received and highly appreciated publication that fulfilled its niche role of dispensing useful gardening information focused on the Northern New York region.

PROVENANCE

The collection was donated to St. Lawrence University Special Collections in 2010 by Phil Harnden, a principal organizer and leader of Alternatives to War and publisher and editor of North Country Gardener
