BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Frederic Remington was born in Canton, New York, on October 4, 1861, the son of Seth Pierre Remington and Clara Sackrider. He was educated at The Vermont Episcopal Institute and Yale University, but after the death of his father, Remington left school and went West at age 19. There he worked as a cowboy and a scout, ran a sheep and mule ranch, made money and lost it, and formed the aesthetic vision that was to guide the rest of his life. When he returned to the East he determined upon a career as an artist and illustrator.

In 1884 Remington married Eva Caten and they settled in New York, but as commissions and assignments came in, Remington spent considerable time traveling the American west and abroad working on his illustrations and paintings. His favorite subjects were men near nature and struggling in extreme circumstances. His work with both the human figure and the horse was famous for its strong sense of action.

In later years Remington painted more and illustrated less. In 1895, he turned to sculpture and produced 22 works during the next fourteen years. His sculptures were illustrations in bronze with an accent on character and action. In addition to his works of art, Remington also wrote vigorous journalistic prose and published books and articles so that he might use his drawings and paintings to illustrate them. His illustrations and stories appeared in the popular magazines of the day such as Century, Collier's Weekly, Cosmopolitan, The Craftsman, Harper's Monthly, Harper's Weekly, Harper's Round Table, McClure's, and Scribner's Magazine. Best remembered for his documentary art, he was one of the most prolific men in his field. His works cover the whole era of the "Old West", both historically and geographically.

SCOPE & CONTENT

The Remington Collection at St. Lawrence University, numbers approximately 400 items. Remington's correspondence constitutes the most important series in the collection. Included are letters to Poultney Bigelow, famous as a war correspondent and Remington's closest friend. Remington illustrated many of the articles which Bigelow wrote. A number of the articles Remington illustrated for Harper's Magazine are included in this collection.

There are also letters to John Howard and to Remington's wife, Eva Adele Caten Remington, and various others.

There is an extensive collection of magazines in which articles written and/or illustrated by Remington were first published. There are issues of Harper's New Monthly Magazine, dating from 1889-1902 and of Harper's Weekly Magazine, dating from 1886-1895, and articles excerpted from Harper's Magazine. In addition to these are issues of Collier's The National Weekly, which regularly feature oversize Remington illustrations.

Finally, the library has an extensive collection of books by and about Remington. These are searchable through ODYSseus, the library's online catalog <http://www.stlawu.edu/library/>

Brief CHRONOLOGY of Frederic Remington's Life:

- 1861 Oct. 4 Frederic Sackrider Remington is born to Seth Pierre and Clara Sackrider Remington in Canton, NY. He is their only child. His father is a newspaper publisher and postmaster of Canton.
- 1875 Aug. Remington enters Vermont Episcopal Institute, a military school in Burlington.
- 1876 Sept. Remington enrolls as a sophomore at Highland Military Academy, Worcester, Massachusetts; he sketches incessantly, filling notebooks with scenes of action and adventure rendered in pencil, ink, and watercolor.
- 1878 Sept. Remington enrolls at Yale School of Fine Arts; he finds his art classes somewhat disappointing due to their emphasis on classical training.
- 1879 Aug. In Canton, Remington meets Eva Adele Caten (1859–1918), a student at St. Lawrence University (class of 1883); they begin keeping company.
- 1880 Feb. 18 Seth Remington dies; Frederic does not return to Yale.
- 1881 Aug.-Sept. Remington travels to the West for the first time to the Montana Territory; then to the Dakota Territory. He goes by horseback to visit cattle ranches and the gold fields; sketching as he travels. From Wyoming Remington impetuously sends a small sketch on wrapping paper to Charles Parsons, the art director of Harper's Weekly.
Oct. Returning east. FR begins work in Albany as a clerk in the New York State Insurance Department.

- 1882 Feb. 25. Harper's Weekly, a popular pictorial newspaper with the largest circulation in the world, then in excess of 200,000, publishes its first Remington illustration (redrawn by a Harper's staff artist). Sketch appears in St. Lawrence University's yearbook: the Gridiron
- 1883 Using funds inherited from his father's estate, FR purchases sheep ranch in Kansas.
- 1884 Moves to Kansas City, tries hand at running a hardware store and then a saloon --both unsuccessful. Oct. Back east, marries Eva Caten.
- 1885 Sept. Moves to Brooklyn, NY.
- 1886 March –May. Attends Art Students League;
June. Travels in Arizona, New Mexico and Mexico.
- 1887 Feb.-Mar. Exhibits at American Watercolor Society and National Academy of Design.
April. Travels in N Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and western Canada.
May. Remington's first article, "Coursing Rabbits on the Plains," appears in Outing magazine.
- 1888 Feb. Theodore Roosevelt's serialized articles for Century Magazine feature Remington illustrations.
April. Awarded Hallgarten and Clark awards at the National Academy of Design exhibition.
June-July. Travels in Arizona, Texas and New Mexico.
- 1889 July. Awarded silver medal at Paris International Exposition.
Dec. Purchases home, "Endion," in New Rochelle, exhibition at American Art Association.
- 1891 Elected associate member of National Academy of Design.
- 1892 May. Travels to Europe with Yale friend, Poultney Bigelow
- 1893 Travels in Mexico for Harper's
- 1895 First book: Pony Tracks published; first sculpture: Broncho Buster.
Second exhibition at the American Art Association.
- 1898 Crooked Trails published.
Travels to Cuba to cover Spanish-American war.
- 1899 April. Begins illustrating for Colliers after being released from Harper's
- 1900 Begins work at Roman Bronze Works in NY.
Buys summer home "Ingleneuk" on the Thousand Islands, St. Lawrence River in northern NY.
- 1901 A Bunch of Buckskins published; Exhibit at Clausen Gallery.
- 1903 Mar. FR profiled in Outing Magazine
April. Shows at Noe Gallery, NY.
- 1905 Remington Number published by Colliers.
- 1906 Begins showing with Knoedler Galleries, NY.
- 1908 Purchases property for new home and studio in Connecticut.
- 1909 Ends association with Colliers; exhibits at Doll and Richards Gallery; second exhibition at Knoedler.

Dies 26 December after complications of appendicitis
